THREAT MANAGEMENT

The security of any company or individuals and their families depends on the thoroughness of a Threat Assessment. It is the service of a security risk management consultant company that can make the difference when conducting an assessment, to include an in-depth review of all business and family activities, regional, political and religious risks, movement and logistics arrangements. SightSpan Security continuously monitors identified risks and threats to implement corrective or preventative measures to on-going plans as deemed necessary to counter identified changes and challenges.

TRAINING

Hands-on training is part of the implementation of a security design and every risk analysis has recommendations of key person training to uphold the standard emergency procedures. This ensures that prompt action is taken and nothing is left to guess work, making sure everything possible is done to minimize loss and manage risk.

Example Training Programs:

- Explosive Ordnance Device Training Course
- Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) Training Course
- Hostage Negotiation Training Course
- Terrorist Risk Management Training Course

COUNTER-ESPIONAGE

Corporate defensive measures have become increasingly necessary in today's highly competitive markets. Following a thorough Risk Analysis, SightSpan will advise clients on potential weaknesses within their organization and on any preventive measures necessary to safeguard the integrity of new ideas or products. This may include electronic screening of premises, with specific emphasis on information hubs, board and conference rooms, research laboratories and design facilities. The methods used as counter defenses will be within the laws of privacy of the countries in which these measures are implemented and the information gathered will be treated as confidential.

CRISIS PLANNING

Within the context of the threat assessment, either of an organization or individual(s) including families, SightSpan Security will plan for unfavorable conditions, and take steps to preempt those conditions should they arise, or to have in place effective contingency procedures to minimize their risk impact. This includes the extraction and safe passage to safe havens. Medical extractions and the important need of informing all registered people who need to know the status of individuals during and after their extraction where possible.

PROTECTION

SightSpan Security offers recommendations and coordinates consultants to implement the protection in the areas of persons, premises, property and electronics. This service may include the assignment of security auditors. We conduct in-country pre-risk and threat assessments on behalf of organizations or companies whose business activities require them to re-locate under contract out-of-country managers, technicians and specialist workers into countries, which may be hostile for a number of reasons unrelated to the business environment being undertaken. We offer the same in-country assessment for those organizations or individuals whose working activities within the world of sport, leisure or entertainment industries require them to be in such countries.

PHYSICAL SECURITY

Without reasonable physical security measures being in place, all other methods of combating risks presented by terrorism, criminals and other anti-social groups or individuals will be seriously undermined. SightSpan Security provides crime prevention services through Environmental Design. This strategy is based upon the ability to reduce the level of crime by proper design and effective use of a built environment. Physical security recommendations also consider the aspects of the environment that are capable of causing major disruption.
